HEAVEN CHARVET

The Little Yogini

Parents Brooke Burke and David Charvet, both 35

Born January 8

Calm kid "I take her to adult yoga. She kicks her feet and watches me," Mom tells Us of the tot (who goes by her middle name, Rain). Even her style is laid-back: "She wears a lot of sweats!"

DAVID RITCHE

The Kabbalah Cutie

Parents Madonna, 48, and Guy Ritchie, 38

Born September 24, 2005

Culture club Nursery rhymes and cartoons? Hardly. "Madonna and Guy take David to museums and parks, and are teaching him the principles of kabbalah's Spirituality for Kids program," a source tells Us. For fun, the 21-month-old likes playing with siblings Lourdes, 10, and Rocco, 6. "David is much quieter than they are, but still has personality," says the source. "He's the sweetest kid."

Burning Questions

Us tackles some celebrity baby brain-busters

Are there celebrity birthing rooms at L.A. hospitals?

Yes. Gwen Stefani and Julia Roberts have taken advantage of the three-room, two-bath birthing suite at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, which include everything from chilled juices and bottled water to a romantic postbirth dinner for Mom and Dad. ($1,853 a day)

Do star moms get tummy tucks during their C-sections?

"It can be done, theoretically, but I don't recommend it," says Renato Calabria, a plastic surgeon in Beverly Hills. For best results, "wait at least three months, because some skin will stretch back naturally."

Why do celebs give babies funny names?

"Celebrities crave being the center of attention and want their offspring to share in this uniqueness," says Linda Rosenkrantz Finch, coauthor of The Baby Name Bible.

How do A-list babies deal with jet lag?

To help them adjust, "change their sleep pattern the week prior to travel by 15-minute increments each night," Dr. Lisa Meltzer of the Sleep Center at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia tells Us. And if they get cranky during the trip, let them sleep: "All parents know tired babies are cranky babies!"
